The reputation of the players is synonymous with your reliability and seriousness in the eyes of all staffs and all other players.

The better it is, the more the competent staff will contact you or will be interested in your proposals. The same goes for the sponsors.

To have a solid reputation, be correct with the staffs, the players, and try to have the best possible popularity.

A contract proposed by a sponsor contains several clauses, most of them interesting for you (monthly income, bonuses depending on the tournaments won, etc.), but also sometimes constraints (promote the brand a number of times before a deadline, take care of your image, have good performance, etc.).

These countries are divided into 6 divisions:

- World Group (18 countries will play for the Supreme Title)
- World Group 2 (12 countries will try to access World Group)
- Group 1 (12 countries will try to access World Group 2)
- Group 2 (24 countries will try to access Group 1)
- Group 3 (36 countries will try to access Group 2)
- Group 4 (36 countries will try to access Group 3)

Davis Cup takes place in 2 phases:

- The Qualifying Phase
This phase takes place soon in the season (generally in January)
This phase just concerns World Group 2, Group 1, Group 2, Group 3 and Group 4
It allows the different countries to try to reach the upper division for the next Davis Cup. To do this, the country must finish first in its pool of 3. If it finishes last in its pool of 3, the country goes down in lower division.
- The Final Phase
The 18 countries of the World Group are divided into 6 pools of 3. The 1st of each pool as well as the 2 best 2nd are qualified for the ¼ final. The tournament continues to the final to select the winner of the Davis Cup.
The last finishing countries of their pool descend into the World Group 2.

The sequence of each meeting is as follows:

- 1 single match between the top 2 ranked players in each country in the Technical Ranking
- 1 single match between the 2 worst ranked players in each country in the Technical Ranking
- 1 double game

The player selection mode for the tournament is based on the Technical Ranking. However, a maximum of 4 players per country is selected (these are the Olympic rules).

Note that the Olympic Games do not offer any points for the Technical Ranking. On the other hand, in terms of popularity and reputation, performing at this tournament will clearly boost your career.

2.5 Lists

In Absolute Tennis Manager ©, the representation of information in the form of lists offers many possibilities of visualization and filters.

Most of the time, by clicking on an item in the list, a more detailed information strip is displayed at the bottom of the screen, with possible actions on that item.

By double-clicking on the item, you will access the record of the selected item.

When the filter options are present in the list, you can:

- Sort the list in ascending or descending order by clicking on the corresponding column header
- Specify a textual or encrypted filter criterion for each column
- Access other filter operators by clicking on the filter image associated with the desired column
- Drag a column header into the insert just above to group the information by that column (click on the cross of the filtered column to remove the grouping)
- Combine groups (for example, you can group French players by age)

3 Create a new game

Once you have chosen the language of the game, the screen containing all your careers is displayed. To create a new career, click the New Game button.

The initialization processing then starts.

WARNING: In some cases, the progress bar may freeze, this does not mean that the processing is interrupted. In this case, just wait for the next screen to appear (usually no more than 2 or 3 minutes).

Absolute Tennis Manager © offers you two game modes:

- Play as a player

In this mode, you will take a player from the existing circuit, and you will inherit all its features, its track record, and therefore its record at the Hall of Fame.

- Player created

In this mode, you can create your player from scratch, both in terms of personality and characteristics (technical, physical, mental).

You leave with a capital of points. Each of the characteristics has more or less important coefficients.

As soon as you assign points to a characteristic, your capital is affected by the number of points multiplied by the coefficient.

Each point (with the corresponding coefficient) used will be removed from your initial budget, it's up to you whether you want to start your career with a little money or with more skills!

Important: You can choose a player style (choice in the bottom left): this will determine your characteristics automatically, which you can change as you like.

Whatever game mode you choose, you can retire at any time, until the end of the 2035 season. At that time, all the careers will be calculated to know the trace that will have left in the history of Tennis!

3.1 Embodied player Mode

This game mode allows you to play as a player in the world of tennis. The names have been modified slightly, but you will not have any trouble recognizing them.

Select the player of your choice from the list, you will inherit its technical, physical, mental and surface characteristics, as well as all other peculiarities.

WARNING: The higher the player you play, the harder your career points will be to acquire.

3.2 Created player Mode

This game mode allows you to create your player from scratch, both civil and tennistic.

The first screen invites you to state your identity, your nationality, your place of life (important choice in relation to your movements towards the various tournaments), or to choose your match outfit and even a photo stored on your computer.

Once this information is validated, it is time to inform the sporting characteristics, which will define the style of player that you are. In the lower part of the screen, you can set a player style, which will pre-feed your characteristic levels according to that style. Of course, the features are adjustable as you wish, within the limit of the money available.

Indeed, each characteristic point costs money, the sum being more or less important depending on the coefficient of importance of the characteristic.

As you change, your level is estimated in relation to all the players in the ranking, which gives you an idea of your potential. Attention, it is your technical ranking and not your level that will be the criterion of accessibility to the tournaments.

You can also choose not to consume too many features points in order to start your career with a larger budget.

Style	favourite surfaces	Description
Counter	Hard	Uses his opponent power to outpace him
Defender	Clay	Mostly defends, attacks only on easiest balls
Puncher	Hard	Attacks from the baseline but can also end the point at the net
Varied	All, but weakly	Can build and end the point both from the baseline and the net
Volleyer	Grass	Rushes the net as often as possible, and often serves and volleys

4 The matches

4.1 Tab Match

Here we are! In the heat of the moment.

On the court, you will be able to judge your tennistic state and use tactics and strategies to beat your opponent.

But let's see together what this Match tab decrypts.

The rhythm of the game:

You decide how fast you want to watch the game.

You can run the game entirely, day the set, player the game or the next point. Your choice will depend on the tactical and strategic response you will need during the game.

If a point is important, it is important to be able to anticipate how you will play it, and thus to access all your tactical possibilities.

In any case, whatever the pace of the game you indicate, know that you can pause it by pressing the 'Space' bar, and thus manage your tactical and strategic choices.

Once they are done, press the 'Space' bar again to resume the game.

The film of the game:

On the left-hand side, you can view the match events point by point.

This way, you will know if a player has made an ace, a double foul, a winning point, a direct foul, Nothing will escape you!

The conditions of the match:

Below, you can see the weather conditions of the game: the weather, the temperature and the wind.

Match conditions are to be taken into account, they affect several parameters such as fatigue for example.

The match can even be interrupted if it rains, with the unpredictable consequences of the continuation of the match after such a break.

Also, you can see what the public support is. If you play in your country, you will certainly have public support (unless you play against a fellow countryman or a beloved player of the audience). If this is the case, do not hesitate to harangue it from time to time if you are in difficulty during the match, it will serve you!

The express statistics:

In this insert, you will find a summary of the game statistics in real time.

For more details on game statistics, go to the 'Statistics' tab.

4.2 Tab Statistics

You will find in this tab all the statistics of the game, by categories (e.g.: service statistics, net statistics, etc.).

This tab will allow you to analyze the progress of the game, to confirm whether your tactics and strategies are effective or not. To sum up, these numbers are good indicators of the game you're playing.

4.3 Tab Match Plan

Your eight tactical schemes will influence the match you play!

You will be able to decide whether to use your schemes, and for each of them, depending on the circumstances of the points you play. For example, you will be able to use the 'Stolen Service' 20% of the time, but never on the 2nd service. Another example, you can use the 'Drawer' tactic 40% of the time if you have the advantage during the point.

All these possibilities are very numerous and can be changed at any time during the match, when you make PAUSE with the Space bar.

4.4 Tab Strategy

Intensity:

This large gauge ranging from 10% to 100% simply defines the intensity you put into every shot you play. Might as well tell you that this is important!

Of course, the more intense this will be, the more your shape will be impacted, so use it sparingly. On the other hand, if you lead to the score and you release this intensity to preserve to lessen your fatigue, you risk seeing your opponent return to the game, especially if he decides to increase his intensity.

High-risk length of ball:

This strategy allows you to take risks relative to the length of your balls.

Use it fully especially if you have a good skill in 'Ball length regularity'.

This strategy can also be interesting against an opponent not accustomed to back-of-court rallies.

At any time in the game, you can regulate this strategy, minimizing or maximizing it, or cancelling it.

High-risk angles:

This strategy allows you to take risks relative to the accuracy of your tennis moves.
Use it fully especially if you have a good skill in precision related tennis moves.

At any time in the game, you can regulate this strategy, minimizing or maximizing it, or cancelling it.

High-risk 1st serve:

As its name suggests, this strategy allows you to take risks at 1st serve.
The more risks you take on the 1st serve, the more chances you have to make an ace, a winning serve, or to put your opponent in trouble.
But you will also have less chance of your service being correct, so probably a % on the 1st serve lower than the one you commonly have.

High-risk 2nd serve:

As its name suggests, this strategy allows you to take risks in the 2nd serve.
Taking risks on the 2nd serve may surprise your opponent on some points. This can be interesting on strategic points of the game.
Be careful, however, if you use this strategy, you will probably increase your number of double faults.

Defence:

This strategy is simple. You will decide whether you will prefer passing shot to lob, or vice versa, when your opponent is at the net.
So analyze your levels in these two skills to make your choice, but also the characteristics of your opponent if you know them (via your coach's report, or because you went to see his file).
Thus, if your opponent is strong at the net and has a good presence at the net, it may be preferable to prefer the lob, unless he is big and strong in smash

Frequency of drop shots:

This strategy allows you to define how often you will use the drop shots against your opponent.
Is your opponent fast? Is he comfortable in the net? Are you yourself at ease in 'Up and Down' tactics to link with a lob? So many of which only you have the answers!

4.5 Tab Presentation

Here you will find a presentation of your confrontation with your opponent of the day.
The profiles of the two players are exposed, with comparisons.

The statistics of each one, the direct confrontations, the career of each, etc.

Approve or foil the predictions, the game is on!

4.6 L'onglet Rapport Coach

This tab is only available if you have a coach.

Your coach introduces you to your opponent's characteristics, strengths, weaknesses, etc.

This is essential data, especially if you don't really know the opponent of the day.

Your coach will also give you clues about your opponent's physical state, mental state, and morale, as well as his performance in terms of playing conditions, including the surface.

The more knowledge your coach has on the circuit (ATT, CTT or FTT) your opponent is used to at the time of the match, the more relevant his advice will be.

Your body, in detail, will have no more secrets for you with the information that is offered here.

To know your detailed general state of health, it is necessary to be under contract with one of these staffs:

- Caregiver
- Physiotherapist
- Physiotherapist

These three types of staff are empowered to diagnose you on 21 parts of your body.

The accuracy of this diagnosis will depend on their respective skills.

By clicking on a part of your body, you have access to the diagnosis made by the selected staff. You can also, once a day, ask one of your medical staff to provide a slight care on the selected part of the body. The quality of the care will depend on the competence of the selected staff on this part of the body.

11.1 Physical Injuries and Alerts

Like any high-performance athlete, the injury can happen.

It can be minor or severe, and the severity of your injury will depend on the length of your unavailability on the tennis courts.

Physical injuries and alerts can occur during or after a game, during or after training, and sometimes during an activity that requires effort.

11.2 Care

If you are injured, do not panic! You have different ways to reduce the number of days of your unavailability outside the tennis courts.

First of all, thanks to your staff.

Having a caregiver, a physiotherapist or a physiotherapist on your staff will allow you to ask them to organize a care protocol. Depending on their skills, and depending on the type of injury, the care protocol will be more or less effective. This protocol is free, since you already pay your staff.

If you do not have medical staff, you can go to the clinic or the hospital.
These structures are always available. They are paid for and at different levels.

It's up to you to make the right choices to get back to the tennis courts as quickly as possible!

12 Menu Languages

This screen shows you how you master the 27 languages in Absolute tennis Manager ©.

The more you master the languages, the more you will be able to communicate with the different players in the game (they also speak only certain languages).

For example, if you want to talk to a coach whose language is not Japanese, you will need to know a minimum of this language to get in touch with him.

A minimum of 50% of language learning is required to be considered fluent.

When you are in negotiations with a staff to possibly sign a contract, it is important to know that your language of discussion, if it is not the maximum on one side or the other, will weaken the chances of reaching an agreement.

13 Menu Domain

The domain is your living space, when you are not on the move to play tournaments.

It consists of your home and perhaps embellished with many buildings or constructions in order not only to improve your quality of life, but also to progress on certain characteristics.

Construction companies issue proposals daily, at a certain price, under different conditions. These proposals have a time limit, before being renewed by others, so do not miss the good deals if you have enough budget.

When you accept a construction proposal, you are notified of the moment of realization, and its duration.

Once your construction is complete, you see it appear on your domain, and it becomes usable by clicking on it. Be careful, your constructions have a life span over time, so a clay court will no longer be as good a year after its construction, so less efficient for progression. If you wish, you can consider renovating this construction, unless you prefer to buy a new one, and perhaps a higher one.
